Novogradac Promotes Erin Neff to Principal in Dover, Ohio

National Accounting and Consulting Enterprise Promotes 12 to Principal Across Country

SAN FRANCISCO—National accounting and consulting enterprise Novogradac elevated Erin Neff to principal. Novogradac, which specializes in affordable housing, community development, historic preservation, renewable energy and opportunity zones, also promoted 11 of Neff's colleagues to principal. Neff works out of the Novogradac's Dover, Ohio, office.

"We are very pleased to announce Erin's new role as principal," said Michael J. Novogradac, managing partner of Novogradac. "Erin's strengths continue to be her communication skills and problem-solving ability. She is always ready to tackle new challenges and eager to find solutions to complex problems."

"I'm excited about this opportunity and I look forward to serving Novogradac's varied clients in this new capacity," said Neff.

Since beginning her career with Novogradac in 2007, Neff gained an extensive background in real estate partnership audits, federal and state partnership taxation, and compliance matters related to the new markets tax credit (NMTC), low-income housing tax credit and renewable energy investment tax credit industries. Additionally, Neff works with nonprofit organizations, performing audits of such entities and their federal awards. Neff has participated as a panelist at Novogradac's NMTC conference workshops and is a regular presenter for the company's in-house training courses. She is a part-time accounting professor at Kent State University, her alma mater, where she holds a bachelor's degree in business administration and a master's degree in accounting. She is licensed as a CPA in Ohio.
