

Congressional Candidates Survey Results 2018

Preservation Action surveyed Congressional candidates for the 2018 Midterm election to keep Americans informed on where their candidates for office stand on the National Historic Preservation Program.

Overall Survey Results

99%

Support the Historic Preservation Fund

98%

Support the Federal Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program

96%

Support considering the impact of potential infrastructure legislation on historic resources

Results by Party

Democrat	Republican	Ind./Other
100%	100%	96%
99%	97%	96%
100%	97%	88%

"Honoring our historical sites reminds every new generation of the sacrifices made to advance our pursuit for truth."

- Edward S Gilbert Jr, VT, Senate (I)

"Preserved battlefields, historic landmarks, parks, and resources serve as economic engines for our local communities in Tennessee, enhancing property values, creating jobs, generating local, state and federal tax revenues, and revitalized communities.

The unique and diverse history of Tennessee serves as a testament to the American dream."

- Marsha Blackburn, TN, Senate (R)

"Historic preservation is in part about saving pieces of who we are, and ensuring that our physical history remains in place to remind us of where we've been and where we're going. In Detroit, we've seen historic buildings and entire neighborhoods razed in the name of progress, but then the supposed benefits never materialize. We need historic preservation as a way to build and revitalize just, inclusive neighborhoods that are anchored in our past and provide a springboard to our future."

- Rashida Tlaib, MI-13, (D)